Punching content with great insights By Giacomo I discovered this precious condensate of business insights while traveling beside an old businessman and what convinced me to have my copy was that this old man told me how useful was the ideas inside and how linear and intuitive and that after decades of well conducted business he had found very crucial information on how to be effective even today. I was particularly delighted on the copywriting strategies and branding side. As a fresh sales manager I made myself clear that I had to brand myself too, inside and outside my company. For consultant to enterprises this fresh reading is fast and enjoying. Hope to read something new soon
