How we face the emotional drains on our dream banks and how to go on with hope and courage is only one "Lesson from Clod". Jeffrey is an amazing young man whose heart is so giving and free. His art is exciting, happy, meaningful, and very beautiful. You will shed tears of sadness but more of joy and amazement! The lessons are real and practical as well as "backwards", (have to read the book to see what that means!). Kudos to Dr Hanson for writing this down and sharing it with the world! May God continue to bless you all!Virgetta, an old family friend from Iowa0 of 0 people found the following review helpful. Amazing young man and familyBy CarolynI have really enjoyed reading this fantastic story about a young man who had overcome a situation in life. I also know his mother very well as she is from my home town and I watched her grow up into a beautiful woman.This is a great story.0 of 0 people found the following review helpful. Inspiring!By Terri LewisThank you Jeff, Julie and Hal for sharing your very personal story, struggles and successes along your journey. This book is applicable to every personal and business walk of life and a must read.

This is the story of one kid. A story of what one visually impaired kid from Kansas can do. A kid with contagious generosity, setting an example for individuals and corporations to become more philanthropic--to change the world. A kid who responded to a challenge and redefined himself. Jeff Hanson's art is hanging in Warren Buffett's home. The Association of Fundraising Professionals named Jeff "Young Philanthropist of the Year." The Small Business Administration named Jeff "Young Entrepreneur of the Year." The trifecta! Jeff Hanson is defined by art, philanthropy and entrepreneurship. Not the kid down the street who lost his vision to a brain tumor. Jeff Hanson will raise one million dollars for charity before he is 20. One million by 20!
