Highly recommend!0 of 0 people found the following review helpful. These 5 Guidelines can give a positive view to work and personal environmentsBy new puppy ownerThis book seems to show an easy direct way to change how you view and handle most relationships in life. These concepts make sense in just how we deal with all people. It was suggested reading by a Human Resources

Specialist. It is written in a personal story form to show how the concepts are used and the effects of the changes. I am anxious to implement this in my own company. All of my managers will be reading this soon. In my view, these 5 guidelines can make the workplace a more positive environment in which to spend your energy and time. 0 of 0 people found the following review helpful. Loved it with all of my HEARTBy CustomerThis is an amazing, easy to read book that gets to the point pretty quickly. It's story format makes the main point memorable. I think I will write it in calligraphy and put it on my wall!

From the brain trust at The Atlanta Consulting Group comes a simple method hailed as a revolution in management practice: learning to care. Caring isn't a frill. It delivers results. And for some unenlightened managers, learning to care can be a matter of corporate life or death. Managing from the Heart is the story of Harry Hartwell, a composite character drawn from decades of the author's field experience on the front lines of management reform. Known by his staffers as "the Abominable No Man," Harry's remarkable transformation into a caring and compassionate manager offers an easy-to-apply business parable—and an absolutely painless, one-of-a-kind learning experience. Acquire the five principles of caring management. Your people will be glad you did. And so will everyone who keeps an eye on your bottom line. Praise for Managing from the Heart: "Outstanding! Delivers the right message at a critical time."—Lee A. Robbins, VP and CFO, Puritan Bennett "Five powerful principles, so simple they are arresting. Their application by every manager can catapult a company to new heights of greatness."—Don M. Schrello, chairman, Schrello Direct Marketing, Inc. "Much needed!"—Norman Vincent Peale "Managing from the Heart is a gift you should give to yourself and your people. It outlines a beautiful philosophy that if applied will not only impact human satisfaction in your organization, but bottom line results."—Kenneth Blanchard, Ph.D., co-author of The One Minute Manager
